Dear Friend,

We want to thank you very much for your on-going interest and support which has allowed The Dalai Lama Foundation to grow into a sound organization. We have a solid fiscal management team in place, and we receive exceptional pro bono legal advice. Our future growth and outreach opportunities depend on the support we receive from our friends and colleagues, such as you.

We continue to meet with many more like-minded individuals and organizations, and foresee the potential for making even greater contributions for peace in the world in the coming years. In 2009 we are planning to launch at least two new projects: an adult online course for developing inner peace and one for young children based on the book Ethics for the New Millennium by the Dalai Lama.

Our development is the result of deliberate and thoughtful considerations from all involved, and our programs and educational materials, including our extensive online resources, are being used widely in schools, prisons, and by individuals.

Among many of our collaborative efforts, we hope you have had the opportunity to see The Missing Peace (www.tmpp.org) art exhibition in North America, which is still traveling worldwide, and Project Happiness (www.projecthappiness.com) another inspiring educational endeavor which has formally launched this year.

To help us further our efforts, please consider sending your gift to The Dalai Lama Foundation in the enclosed envelope, and visit us at www.dalailamafoundation.org for a detailed description of our programs and projects. Online donations are also welcomed.

Thank you!

Sincerely,
